The Threshold of Life

Many men allow themselves to attain middle age before thinking of Life Assurance. The subject should make its strongest appeal to a man standing upon the threshold of his career.

Life Assurance is always economical. If taken up at an early age it is doubly so. Endowment Assurance taken up now, matures at the moment when either your business or your family will feel the benefit of it most.

Avoid the regrets that many men feel in later life.

TEAMS FOUGHT TO THE POINT OF EXHAUSTION

Bitterly Contested Game Between McGill and Varsity.

SCORE 4-4.

"Dink" Carroll Made Sensational Catch in Last Minutes of the Play.

Playing hard and bitterly throughout the full sixty minutes of the game, Varsity and McGill fought a 4-4 tie on Saturday afternoon. The advantage of one team was counteracted by an advantage in another department to the other, and they both gave all they had to score the points which left them on the same footing at the conclusion of the contest.

McGill's players were not able to last throughout the contest in the same manner as the Toronto men but they fought with undiminished spirit long after their strength had given out. An early lead for the Red and White gave them the necessary advantage which allowed them to stave off defeat in the dying moments of the game when Toronto was slowly but sure gaining as the time progressed.

Both of the teams were glad as they heard the call of the whistle at the end of the game for both of them had played without letting up and were ready to drop. The casualties to the players in the latter part of the contest were caused not so much by injuries received in play as by the general exhaustion of the men needed but a slight injury to render them incapable of playing further.

It was a game that caused as great a nervous strain on the 13,000 spectators as it did on the players. Many of the interested watchers claimed that they had had such a strenuous afternoon watching the battle that they were pleased when it was over and sincerely hoped that they would not witness a similar one again, although they were unanimous in declaring that they would not have missed seeing the game under any consideration.

The spectacle of the McGill team fighting grimly and desperately in the final moments of the game, while their opponents pressed them back was one to be remembered. Nothing but the early lead saved the team when the men who had suffered from injuries and sickness earlier in the week began to weaken and falter under the tremendous strain placed upon them.

When Varsity had the ball on the McGill forty yard line with only ten minutes to play, it appeared as if they would surely back them across. Nothing but the determination not to be beaten kept the McGill team from falling back and only grit and gameness allowed them to fight in return.

SYRACUSE SWAMPS TEAM FROM BROWN

Team Which Will Play McGill Wins Most Decisively.

In a listless game marred by many fumbles by the visitors, Syracuse defeated Brown by a score of 28 to 0. Costly fumbles were responsible for two of the Syracuse touchdowns, and the Orange itself failed to add another through a similar misplay. Brown lacked teamwork noticeably and displayed poor generalship on both the offensive and defensive.

Syracuse's first touchdown was made in the first few minutes of play, when the Brown quarterback failed to lay back far enough on a kick and the ball sailed over his head. Syracuse recovered on the 20-yard line. It was a matter of just a few minutes before the Orange pushed over the goal line. Shortly after this, due to another fumble by Brown, Syracuse crossed the line again.

In the second period Brown took a decided brace and kept, Syracuse from scoring, holding like a stone wall at critical periods. The Brown line through out the game was staunch, and Syracuse was unable, except on rare occasions, to make any decisive gains. Most of the Syracuse advantage was on trick plays, forward passes and long end runs.

In the third period Syracuse scored two more touchdowns with goals, and in the last, with practically a full substitute team they held the tired Brown plungers without much difficulty.

The Orange goal line was never in danger throughout the game, though Brown made some long and threatening gains at intervals through the line. It was Brown's inability to hold the ball that gave Syracuse the easy victory. The teamwork of Syracuse was excellent and superior generalship and the ability to take advantage of breaks had much to do with the result.

BIG HARRIER MEETS START ON SATURDAY

Trial Harrier Run at 5 P.M.

C. P. R. RACE.

Entry Forms From Manager—Inter-faculty Meet Wednesday.

Now that the University Sports Day is a thing of the past, training for the several big harrier meets starts in earnest this afternoon. At five o'clock a run will take place from the Stadium.

The first inter-faculty race will take place on Wednesday afternoon over a four-mile course. This will provide an opportunity for men to measure up their endurance with others, and will furnish some keen competition between the various faculties. The route being selected will be over as level and good roads as possible.

Following in close succession are two outstanding events. On Saturday, Oct. 22nd, the C. P. R. Athletic Association are holding an eight and a half mile road race open to all amateur runners. An invitation has been sent to McGill to enter long distance men. All members of the Harrier Club who feel up to the event are urged to fill out application, obtainable from the secretary or the Harrier Club manager, Stan. Read. There will be ten prizes given for this competition, and as road work is far easier than running on the track, McGill should make out pretty well, with the amount of good material on hand.

The next marathon race will be on Oct. 29th, in Montreal, "The Dunlop Road Race," which will not be as far as the C. P. R. meet, but will demand more team work. It will not be open to individual entries, but for a team to be picked from the leading men in a final inter-faculty meet to be held on Wednesday, the 26th.

The time left for getting into condition is very short. The Rugby and Track Clubs have begun the season well, and it is up to every college team to maintain the good record. Be on hand to-day at 5 o'clock at the Stadium.

The programme for the season is in brief:

Wednesday, Oct. 19—Inter-faculty race.

Saturday, Oct. 22—C. P. R. A. A. Road Race.

Wednesday, Oct. 26—Final inter-faculty race.

Saturday, Oct. 29—Dunlop Road race.

Friday, Nov. 4—Inter-collegiate meet at Kingston.

"DAILY" STAFF.

Members of the "Daily" staff will find elsewhere in this issue an enumeration of the men as allotted to each night. They are urged to bear this in mind and to be on hand in the office between one and one-thirty in the afternoon of their particular night, when the assignments will be made. This plan has been adopted from last year, as it has been found that it is the only manner in which the work can be adequately covered.

Also, any around college who may be thinking of trying out for a position on the staff, are advised to interview the managing-editor at the same hour, in the "Daily" office, during the early part of this week.

APPROPRIATE CLOSING FOR THE REUNION

Dr. Ritchie Conducted Service—Rev. G. C. Pidgeon Speaker.

IMPOSING CHOIR.

Collection for University Settlement and S. C. A.—Many Present.

Nothing more appropriate could have been chosen for the closing of the McGill Centennial Reunion than the special University service, which was held at St. James Methodist Church yesterday afternoon. It was an entire success. Mr. MacKay and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on the manner in which the service was arranged and carried out.

The service was conducted by Dr. Ritchie with Rev. G. C. Pidgeon D. D., of the Bloor St. Presbyterian Church Toronto as speaker. Principal Currie read the Scripture lessons.

The church was entirely filled long before the time set for the service. Graduates and undergraduates with their friends and relatives assembled to close the Centennial Reunion.

Dr. Pidgeon's address was very effective and was one that will be remembered. The attention of the congregation was undiminished throughout his interesting sermon which was clearly and impressively given.

The choir was composed entirely of McGill men and women. Great advancement has been made by this comparatively new organization since it has come under the direction of Harold E. Key of the Emmanuel Congregational Church. The choir consists of seventy members and is becoming very efficient. It is a great asset to the University. Their leading in the hymns was all that could be desired.

The service was started with the singing of Hail, Alma Mater! and then Holy, Holy, Holy! This was followed by Psalm XII which was read responsively. The Scripture lesson was next read by the Principal. The hymn "Strong Son of God" was next sung followed by a special prayer.

A collection was then taken in aid of the University, Settlement, and the Student Christian Association of the University. During this the hymn "Still, Still with Thee" was rendered by a quartet unaccompanied, organized by Mr. Murray, G. Brooks '08. This quartet was composed of C. A. Hale '09, 1st tenor, M. G. Brooks '08, 2nd tenor, A. McGarry, '13, 1st bass and W. W. Marshall, '06, 2nd bass. The first two were members of the original McGill Quartet which had a great reputation. Their rendering of the hymn was wonderfully clear and effective. After the hymn "The Son of God goes forth to war" E. C. (Continued on Page 3.)

ASSAULT-AT-ARMS FEB IN TORONTO

Intercollegiate B. W. and F. Executive Meet.

The executive of the Canadian Inter-collegiate Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Union, held their first meeting of the season last Saturday morning in the McGill Union. All the questions before the meeting were successfully disposed of in a business-like way, that bodes well for an unusually fine season.

The "Big Three" were all present in the persons of Jas. Bends (Queens), G. P. Awrey (Queens), G. W. Hewitt (Toronto), and from McGill—Dr. A. S. Lamb, D. W. MacKeen, G. R. Currie.

There were four questions of outstanding importance before the executive:

1.—Election of officers for the coming year.

2.—Arranging a date for the inter-collegiate assault-at-arms.

3.—Printing the rules and constitution of the Union.

4.—Getting a die for the medals awarded to the winners of the assault-at-arms.

The newly elected officers are as follows:
Hon. Pres.—Prof. T. Loudon, Toronto.

Pres.—Dave MacKeen, McGill.
Vice-Pres.—H. P. Taylor, Queens.
Sec.—Gordon W. Hewitt, Toronto.
The assault-at-arms is to take place under the auspices of Varsity this year. It will be on the Friday and Saturday of the third week in February.

Arrangements for the die for the medals and the printing of the constitution were completed to the satisfaction of all.

MONTREAL, OCTOBER 17, 1921.

THE AFTERMATH.

The Centennial week has come and gone. The Sons of Old McGill are homeward bound once more after a continuous round of festivities of every kind. About the Re-union itself there can be no doubt; it was an overwhelming success.

But what of the aftermath. Is this stirring response on the part of well over three thousand former McGill men to leave any impression on those of us who are undergraduates just now? If the sight of all these Graduates drawn from every quarter of the globe by their enduring fondness for their old University does not have some positive effect on this year's undergraduate life, and on the undergraduate life of future years, then it has not been worth the candle.

It was a mighty and inspiring sight, take it as you will, to see all these grizzled-haired men well on in middle life striding about the Campus with a gleam of unmistakable pride in their eyes that bespoke the consciousness of their status as partners in the traditions of a hundred years, and in the hopes of centuries to come, to see a row of the old football captains step out to be snapped at the Stadium on Saturday just before the gruelling contest waged by their successors on the gridiron.

Speech-making and receptions and the wholesale conferring of honorary LL.D.'s are well and fitting in their way, but all these can count for nothing if the genuine enthusiasm behind them is lacking. And there was most undoubtedly something behind all the formalism and unavoidable ponderousness of the Centennial Celebrations. It is just this something that should instil added zest into everybody who was privileged to be a student of Old McGill at a time when her sons and daughters rallied round for the birthday junketings.

A TRIUMPH.

The game on Saturday was a triumph for intercollegiate athletes. Both of the teams displayed a spirit that augurs well for the success of college sport in the future. While they both fought hard and bitterly to win the contest, there was not a moment at which it could be said that any unfair tactics or rough play was used. The decisions of the officials were accepted without complaint, and the players devoted all of their efforts to winning the game on their merits.

The consensus of opinion among both players and spectators was that it would have been a shame had either team won the game. Seldom have two aggregations of players been seen on the field that were as evenly matched as the teams which represented Toronto and McGill, and still less often have teams played such a game.

The rivalry which has marked the meeting of the teams representing the two colleges was present, as it always will be, but it was marked by a spirit on the part of both players and spectators that urged them to cheer their opponents for their brilliant performances and to sympathize with them when they suffered a loss through injuries to the players.

The players, spectators, and rooters, all went to make up a spectacle that the two colleges might well be proud of, and that came as a fitting climax to the centennial re-union. It was a contest long to be remembered, and talked of when the present students are old graduates.

UNION WAS SCENE OF RUGBY BANQUET

McGill Gives Dinner For Toronto Players.

Members of the visiting 'Varsity rugby team, were tendered an informal banquet by the McGill men on Saturday evening. The function took place in the Union, and was well attended by the players, prominent undergraduate officers around McGill were also present.

Duncan, captain of the visiting squad, and Anderson, leader of Shag's men, both said a few words. Frank Shaughnessy followed, mentioning the main effect of the new regulations had upon the play, doing away with sensational gains and placing the chief responsibility upon the back division—which, he emphasized, was demonstrated by Saturday's encounter.

After the giving of the 'Varsity and the McGill yells the diners dispersed.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Sir,—I wish to call the attention of the Arts faculty—and Law—to the lamentable lack of interest thus far displayed by them in inter-faculty rugby. I do not believe that the turn out of one man to the first practice and two to the other is absolute evidence of what their showing will be; if I did I would not trouble to write this letter.

Be this as it may be, we have these disconcerting facts to face:

There have been two practices. There has been no turn out, i.e. We have no team.

We play Commerce to-day.

Now that they have been clearly stated, it's no use yelling any more.

We must find a way to do what seems impossible at this late date—get a team and prepare in the only way we have yet time for, a thorough signal practice, to beat Commerce, or at least to save ourselves the disgrace of defaulting the game.

There must be material for a team in Arts. It must be got at, got out, immediately, tout de suite, the tooter the sweeter. Every man must be spoken to personally.

This is up to the class executives.

Every one must get the name of all men in their class who play the game, and persuade them to be out this afternoon, arranging a time—the choice is limited almost to two o'clock.

Their names and the hours during the day when they will be free should all be written down and in the hands of the faculty committee on rugby by 11 o'clock at the latest. One of our representatives is, I think, Gordon Webster, in case this information is wanted.

If the class sports representative co-operate in this way, I am sure the faculty representatives will be equal to the emergency. They will have something to work on, and can post a notice in the Arts building giving the time for a signal practice, assured of a turn out.

Now, everyone helping! Those who will play, don't wait to be asked—give in your name and the hours during the day you will be free yourself.

Of course, no one would say he was free when he had a lecture, even if the old minutes are so precious now.

"WAS OUT."

MEETING TO REORGANIZE GLEE CLUB

New Song Book Makes Club Desirable.

MUSIC FOR ALL.

All Interested in Music Are Urged to Join.

The abandonment of the Fete de Nuit on account of bad weather was a great disappointment to all those who had given their time to make it a success; and of these perhaps none were harder hit than the members of the choir, who had practised for three weeks in the hope of perfecting themselves in their difficult task.

The surprising progress made during the short time that the choir was in being, and the desirability of fostering so useful and promising a branch of music in McGill, have prompted the suggestion that the Glee Club be organized once more. While many efforts to this end have in the past proved abortive, it is thought that the time is now favorable for a successful start. We have now more than thirty men in McGill who have received some training in part singing; we have the new Song Book, with its many songs of our own University, to provide the finest material on which to work; and, best of all, we have the knowledge that it CAN be done—as witness the late lamented choir.

The need of a Glee Club has during the past few years become more and more insistent, and the appearance of a new edition of the Song Book has made an organization of the kind an imperative necessity. There have been collected in this book some thirty or forty songs that have existed for years without any attempt being made, other than now and then and desultorily, to sing them. Is this to continue? Are we at McGill to allow the Glee Club at Toronto University to continue without a rival? Perish the thought! Shall we not rather rouse ourselves, "Shake off this downy sleep," and get down to the business with a little pep?

At 5 o'clock on Wednesday, in the Union, a meeting will be held to organize the new enterprise. We want every man who has had anything to do with singing, whether in a choir, a glee, or the Rooters' Club, to turn out and get this going. Members of the late choir are particularly requested to be on hand.

It's now or never. Come out and give a shove to the Glee Club.

LEAVING THE OLD SEA BEACH THE CLASS

proceeded through the Angus Shops to the Tinguite quarries beyond. Tinguite is a porphyritic rock containing phenocrysts of nepheline, feldspar, hornblende and peroxide. In addition it contains a number of radioactive minerals, and the rock itself is the most radioactive around Mount Royal. The nepheline may be recognized as small hexagons, whitish in color. The hornblende and peroxide are dark in colour, the former occurring in long black lath-like crystals, and the latter in short pot-stick individuals.

The tinguite occurs as a sheet between the beds of Trenton limestone that is it was injected in molten condition between the limestone beds, which in several localities were seen both above and below the tinguite.

The method of intrusion was clearly shown in the quarry last visited. This quarry is about fifty feet deep. Extending around the top is a massive light coloured rock about ten feet thick, and in places covered by drift and limestone. Cutting through the beds of limestone from the bottom of the quarry up to tinguite sheet is a light coloured rock identical to the tinguite of the sheet. The rock is a dyke or perhaps a pipe of tinguite, which at the time of intrusion had acted as a feeder to supply molten rock to the sheet. Near this pipe the limestone is badly brecciated and the beds are bent upwards or in the direction of the movement of the intrusive mass of tinguite. The tinguite pipe at the time of intrusion followed along the joint plains until it came to a bedding plain where it was easier to spread out into a sheet and life the overlying bed than it was to break across the beds.

GEOLOGISTS EXCURSION ON SATURDAY

Met at Corner of Ontario and Davidson.

STUDIED QUARRIES.

Shores of Former Champlain Sea Discovered.

Anybody going along Ontario St. East about the corner of Davidson St. on Saturday morning would have noticed a curious assemblage of men and women carrying hammers and notebooks, while an odd haversack was to be seen. Now these people, who were abroad at the early hour of 9.30 a.m., were not strikers, as the employees of the Montreal Tramways at first thought, but an enthusiastic crowd of geologists of the class '23.

Half the class being present, Dr. Cooke apparently concluded that, all who were going to come had come, and that the best plan would be to proceed up Davidson St. to a point near the Angus shops, where he delivered a short lecture on the deposits along the shore of the Champlain Sea and the beaches which mark its ancient shore lines.

While going east along Ontario St. one will notice a steep hill on the north side of the tramway. From Ontario St. to St. Catherine is a level piece of land which is followed by a slope which flattens out to the banks of the St. Lawrence river. These level plains are called terraces, and the steep slopes are beaches of the old Champlain Sea; the highest of these beaches is some six hundred feet above sea level, or just about the top of Mount Royal, showing that the broad fertile plain on either side of the St. Lawrence River was once covered by a long arm of the ocean.

By tracing these sea beaches it has been shown that this sea once extended along the edge of the Laurentians, far up the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers, down around Lake Champlain and up along the Notre Dame St.

The deposits are chiefly clays at the bottom, changing to sands and gravels as we follow the succession upwards. The clays are thinly bedded, very sticky and make a very good material for the manufacture of brick. The clays are thinly bedded, showing that they were laid down in still water or in a sea and at such a depth as not to be affected by wave motion. In these thinly bedded clays we find the shell of a small creature called Leda. Because that fossil is so characteristic of the clays, they are called the Leda clay. The creature Leda can live only in freezing water, so that we know that the waters must have filled by floating ice much as is the Arctic Ocean at the present time. As these conditions prevailed at the close of the glacial period we are led to believe that the clays were laid down shortly after or during the retreat of the Labrador glacier.

The sands are not to be found in the area visited, but are well exposed on the college grounds, and at the tunnel portal behind the mountain. The sands are characterized by the shell of the creature Saxicava, and the sands are called the Saxicava Sand.

Leaving the old sea beach the class proceeded through the Angus Shops to the Tinguite quarries beyond. Tinguite is a porphyritic rock containing phenocrysts of nepheline, feldspar, hornblende and peroxide. In addition it contains a number of radioactive minerals, and the rock itself is the most radioactive around Mount Royal. The nepheline may be recognized as small hexagons, whitish in color. The hornblende and peroxide are dark in colour, the former occurring in long black lath-like crystals, and the latter in short pot-stick individuals.

The tinguite occurs as a sheet between the beds of Trenton limestone that is it was injected in molten condition between the limestone beds, which in several localities were seen both above and below the tinguite.

The method of intrusion was clearly shown in the quarry last visited. This quarry is about fifty feet deep. Extending around the top is a massive light coloured rock about ten feet thick, and in places covered by drift and limestone. Cutting through the beds of limestone from the bottom of the quarry up to tinguite sheet is a light coloured rock identical to the tinguite of the sheet. The rock is a dyke or perhaps a pipe of tinguite, which at the time of intrusion had acted as a feeder to supply molten rock to the sheet. Near this pipe the limestone is badly brecciated and the beds are bent upwards or in the direction of the movement of the intrusive mass of tinguite. The tinguite pipe at the time of intrusion followed along the joint plains until it came to a bedding plain where it was easier to spread out into a sheet and life the overlying bed than it was to break across the beds.

Some few stayed looking for fossils and evidence of organic life during the deposition of the limestone, but many departed to prepare for the McGill-Varsity game.

MCGILL TEAM AGAIN WINS TOURNAMENT

Ramsay Wins the Singles on Saturday.

BRILLIANT RECOVERY

The Doubles Will be Played This Afternoon.

At half past nine Saturday morning the semi-final of the intercollegiate tournament began. The first was a match between McLachlan of Queen's and Douglas of McGill, the junior champion of Quebec. The Queen's man played a very steady game which proved Douglas's undoing and McGill lost by the score of 6-3, 6-2. The other pair in the semi-finals were both McGill men and to save Ramsay's strength Brown, the other contestant defaulted to him. The finals started at about quarter to eleven before a very fair crowd of nearly two hundred. MacLachlan started off playing a very steady game and tried very hard for every point that he got. No matter how difficult the stroke he always tried for it, and it was very seldom that he missed returning a one. During the first two sets Ramsay and MacLachlan both played a baseline game and at this style the Queen's man was the better and took the first two sets to the tune of 6-4, 6-4. At the beginning of the third set the tri-colour entrant began to tire and lost the set by six games to one although he put up a very hard fight. Ramsay was now playing a much better game than he had been doing at the beginning of the match, and MacLachlan play was already feeling the effect of having to play in the semi-finals that morning before starting in this one. Ramsay now began to play more of a net game and took two sets from MacLachlan in rapid order, and thus won the intercollegiate singles championship. The final score of the match was 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

Much credit is due to Ramsay who came from behind after losing the first two sets and then, by winning the next three copped the championship for McGill. MacLachlan is also to be congratulated for the very stiff fight he put up to take the honours to Queens.

In the doubles there are four McGill men in the finals, Ramsay and Douglas, and Brown and McDougall. This match will be played off on Monday afternoon weather permitting.

The cup emblematic of the Intercollegiate Tennis Championship will remain at McGill for another year. In fact by Friday night McGill had practically secured enough points to clinch it.

TEAMS FOUGHT TO POINT OF EXHAUSTION

Varsity team in the final period and the preparation for one of his drop kicks only led McGill to fight harder. The wings broke through the Toronto line repeatedly and prevented to kick down the side of the field.

For the last fifteen minutes of play all of Varsity's plays were directed towards getting the ball into the center of the field in order to send over a field goal that would give them and every counter move on the parts of McGill team was made in order to combat their attempts to get away from the side of the field.

When everything appeared black to the McGill supporters and Flanagan had been carried off the field exhausted and injured, "Dink" Carroll came on the field and gave an exhibition of putting and catching that swept Toronto off their feet and saved the game for his team. The appearance of the substitute halfback was all that was needed to bolster up the team and they were fighting as hard as ever when the whistle blew for the end of the game.

Both on the teams showed masterly defence work and it will be the task of the coaches to devise plays that will be able to outwit the strong walls set up by the lines. In the game neither of the team were able to work their plays to advantage and the game resolved into a punting duel in which Toronto and the advantage owing to the long boots sent over by Snyder.

It was McGill's first game of the season and they learned a lot that will stand them in good stead for the rest of the season. They are by no means disheartened by the fact that they did not win, but rather they figure that they will be an immensely improved team for the next encounters and will be able to go through the rest of the season with a clean record.

First Quarter.

After the formalities had been gone through and the National Anthem had been played, Varsity kicked off against the wind to Philipotts, who returned to the Varsity thirty-yard line. Varsity tried two line plays, and then Snyder booted the ball forty yards up the field to Anderson, who made ten yards before being downed. On the next play Flanagan kicked a beautiful spiral, and Snyder was forced to rouge behind his own line. At this time McGill were playing super-football, smothering every Varsity attempt, and preventing the opposing backs from getting away after receiving a punt.

McGill kept Varsity on the run at this time, and but for Snyder's forty yard run would have had the ball in a most advantageous position to score.

After Snyder's run Varsity seemed to gain confidence, and more than held their own till the end of the quarter.

Second Quarter.

In spite of the fact that McGill were kicking against the wind, they gained on each exchange of punts, Flanagan adapting the well known strategy of kicking a long low spiral into touch, which made it impossible for Varsity to make any return.

McGill were now showing their best form, and Flanagan, Murphy and Anderson tore through time and again for distances which carried the ball to the Varsity twenty-five yard line. With the danger of a touch confronting them the Toronto line steadied and made a stand, which prevented further advance, and formed McGill to kick. Here Anderson's strategy asserted itself, and with the Blue and White line intent on stopping their opponents from getting down under a punt, quickly called for a drop kick, which Flanagan proceeded to execute with precision and despatch, bringing the McGill score to four, with a large gloomy goose egg staring Varsity in the face.

Third Quarter.

From the beginning of the second half Varsity seemed to take on a new lease of life. The line was working with more smoothness, the backs were getting away more and the outside wings were stopping plays with deadlier tackles. This improvement on the part of the Toronto aggregation seemed to have a disparaging effect on the whole McGill team, and a decided Varsity advantage was noticed. Snyder was now booting 50 and 60 yards, and the McGill efforts in retaliation seemed feeble in comparison. McGill were cracking and Varsity keeping them on the run, booted on every down, and when the teams changed over for the final period, Snyder had forced Anderson and Philipotts to bow to his prowess, and hand over the spoils in the shape of two points to their conqueror.

Fourth Quarter.

With the steady progress of the Blue and White and with McGill losing ground through injuries to regular players, and weakness of substitutes, things looked black indeed as the two teams went to the mat in the final death struggle. Snyder, the outstanding man on the field, was getting even greater distance, he was getting away to runs of ten and fifteen yards on each catch, his ability to do the marvellous at critical moments was almost heart breaking. Twice he kicked to McGill's dead line, and twice Anderson was forced after valiant efforts to concede rouges.

And with the score tied and Varsity playing super-football, Flanagan was knocked out. Game to the core, this player, just out of the hospital, gave until he had nothing left, and he was carried off the field. This was the last straw, and every loyal supporter settled down grimly to wait for defeat. But from the side line emerged a bare headed warrior, sent in to replace the injured star. No sooner had this substitute put in an appearance than the team took a decided brace. Dink Carroll, holding the bridge like Horatius in the brave days of old, turned the time of defeat, and with brilliant catches and marvellous kicking in the most critical moments of the game, drove the enemy back yard by yard, saved the game for McGill, and established himself as a player of rare ability. The sound of the whistle was drowned by the spectators' acclaim of Carroll, who saved the day and proved himself one of the shining lights in the greatest game in Inter-Collegiate history.

ENG. RUGGER CALLED FOR TO-DAY

Will be at M. A. A. A. Grounds.

CHANCES GOOD.

McGill Plays Varsity Fifteen on Saturday.

This afternoon, at 3.15 p.m., on the M.A.A.A. grounds, McGill's English Rugby fifteen will again clash with their old adversaries, the Montreal Club. In the last game, Montreal emerged victorious by a 10-6 score.

To-day, however, the Red and White squad hope to even up. McGill will not have her strongest team in the field, as McDougall, Hemlcken and Bradshaw are still unable to play. However, the available three-quarters, Manson, Marpole, Solloway, Anglin and Beardsley can be depended upon to put up a steady defensive game and a fast, aggressive attack.

Word has been received from Varsity, agreeing to play here on the 29th instant. The Red and White team will meet Varsity in Toronto on Saturday next.

In addition to the above mentioned games, another game between the McGill Seconds and the Montreal second team has been arranged for Saturday next.

Every English Rugbyist is wanted out to the practices on Tuesday and Wednesday, after which the Intercollegiate team will be chosen.

The following men will be at the M.A.A.A. grounds ready to play at 3.15 sharp:

Full back—Gooch.
Three-quarters — Manson, Solloway, Marpole, Anglin.

Halves—J. McIntosh and C. A. McIntosh.

Forwards — Day, McLean, Roome, Budden, Mitchell, Wetmore, Kemp, and Brown.

Reserve back—Beardsley.
Reserve Forwards—Lochead, Rankin and Patterson.

It has been decided to use the 3-2-3 formation in the scrimmage for the Varsity game. This does away with one back, but makes the forward line very strong. It is on the forward line that McGill is weak, having a very light "pack."

The Montreal Club is making special efforts to start to-day's game on time, so the above players are urged to be prompt.

"They say whiskey shortens a man's life."

"Yes, but he sees twice as much in the same length of time."

Rooster — "My ambition is to become like you weather cock."

Duck — "That's a vane thing to aspire."

APPROPRIATE CLOSING FOR THE RE-UNION.

Amaron of the Student Christian Association outlined very briefly the increase in interest in this organization in the last two years. He mentioned that the graduates who had become more or less disconnected, but not disinterested, in the movement would be welcome at their meeting in Strathcona Hall that evening. He described his first attendance two years ago to a meeting of 15 members to one last week at St. Anne de Bellevue of 70. He closed saying the help, advice and fellowship of the graduates was earnestly desired.

The sermon, by Dr. Pidgeon, followed by a hymn closed the service. Dr. Pidgeon took his text from both the 1st Epistle of Peter, 21st verse of 2nd Chapter and Matthew 16-24. Dr. Pidgeon emphasized that mankind should "renounce self as the focal point of his own interest and the object of his activity, and with the old self-life crucified, let him follow Christ in his ministry to others." He also stated that there was a tendency to adhere too strictly to past views that instead we should, if necessary, change their form to meet the newly required needs. All to the same purpose but a different method of application.

He continued by saying that that alone was not Christianity however. He said that Christianity is "far deeper and richer; it is an experience, a spirit, an attitude; it is a relationship with God first and a relationship with man as a result of it." Mankind is to be saved only by the best accepting the consequences of the mistakes of their brethren." He emphasized that mankind should take and give and that only by doing so, would they come to the point of realization of their ideals. The sharing of others' sins, the devotion of those who have had no share in their sin, will rescue those from their consequences.

"There is no service like communicating to the people the spiritual light and which God has given you." Dr. Pidgeon remarked on the short talk by E. C. Amaron of the Students Christian Association by speaking of the great possibilities of which this movement is capable. He stated that in all probability the effect of this organization will be felt for and wide when the present students have graduated. It will, he said, take time and require patience and perseverance. He said that all our ideals are mere dream stuff until we realize the issue. "There is no service like imparting oneself to others when God has given you an illumination and endowment that makes your life of spiritual value", so it is therefore necessary to have the motto "Terar Dum Prosim".

The National Crisis

THE Election to be held on December 6th will be the most momentous in Canadian history; for as men and women vote will depend the economic stability, the political stability and, indeed, the national stability of this country.

Today we find group striving against group, class against class, the industrial and financial structure of the country assailed by false and unsound doctrines and theories, while our great neighbour to the south has adopted a trade exclusion policy directed against Canada's vast agricultural interests.

The currencies of nearly every country in the world are depreciated. The Canadian dollar in the United States is subject to a heavy discount causing a loss of over one hundred million dollars in exchange annually.

Europe is overwhelmed with war debts—unemployment is acute—and the restoration to pre-war conditions is slow.

While Canada is in a much more favorable condition than many countries, yet there is evidence of stagnation, instability, unemployment and lack of confidence.

Taxes are heavy because of the country's efforts in the Great War, but have become burdensome on account of the misconceived policies and blunders of Governments that directed Canada's affairs prior to 1911.

These conditions are largely the direct aftermath of the war, but they must be dealt with fearlessly and constructively. This is no time to consider experimental changes, or the theories of visionaries.

This is no time for Crerar and his Free Trade Policy.

This is no time for King and his wobbling "charted" policies, varying with each provincial boundary.

It is the time to cling to orderly, stable Government in the interest of all the people; to be guided by the experience of the past proceeding upon lines that have been proven sound.

It is the time to place the destinies of Canada again in the hands of a Government led by a sane, courageous Canadian who has safely brought the country through the trying years of reconstruction, and upon whom we can rely to retain and initiate policies in the interest, not of a group or class but of all the people.

It is the time to support Arthur Meighen and his Candidates.

RELAY TEAM MADE VERY GOOD SHOWING

Fast Time Made When McGill Defeated Varsity.

The McGill relay team made remarkable time on Saturday when they won the one mile relay from Varsity at half-time of the football game. The time for the mile was 3 mins 31 secs.

Hamilton who started out for McGill took the lead and was ahead by a margin of a few yards on Sparrow when he passed the baton. Legg, McGill's second man, lost at the outset but passed Davidson on the stretch. Hay got a substantial lead in getting away from Uren at the outset of the lap and Johnson had no trouble in romping in 20 yards ahead of Croll at the finish.

The four men who competed for McGill on Saturday are undoubtedly the best aggregation seen here for some time and should give a good account of themselves. With a good track and favorable weather their chances of lowering the intercollegiate record is bright.

GEORGIA CLOSE ON HARVARD

Harvard football eleven may well consider itself fortunate that it was not tied or even beaten by the hustling eleven from the University of Georgia. The Crimson defeated its opponents from the South but were fought hard from start to finish and after the first three minutes of play did not make anything like showing the Crimson coaches were looking for. The score was 10 to 7, Harvard making a touchdown. Goal and field goal in the first half and the visitors scoring a touchdown and a goal in the final period of play.

HUGE NERVE

Cornell ran up the season's highest score beating Western Reserve by 110 to 0 in a game that was occasionally spectacular, but so one-sided as to be valueless as a test of the Red eleven's real worth.

INTERESTING CASE FOR OLIVER LODGE

Views Arts Memorial, Though Apparently "Killed in Action."

"Well, lads, I'm dead," declared Norman B. Allen, ex-captain 20th Battalion, C.E.F., and past student with Arts '17, as he trundled his 250 lbs. odd avoirdupois into the Windsor on Saturday.

"Where do you get that stuff? What kind of Ontario hooch have you been experimenting with?" said Dr. Charlie Greenwood, Med. '19, of St. Catharines, Ont., who was standing nearby.

"Well, if I am not actually dead, the Arts Undergraduate Society believes I am," and "Fat" proceeded to recount the horrible details.

On returning to McGill after a five years' sojourn in France and Ontario, "Fat" journeyed to the old haunts of the Arts building to witness the unveiling of the tablet erected to those former students who had lost their lives in battle. The ceremony concluded, he proceeded to examine the tablet, and was thunderstruck at finding his own name among those listed as "killed in action."

"Fat" was unwilling to prove to any executive officer of the Arts Undergraduate Society that, far from being a dead one, he is a very live bird indeed.
